Mendeley: Add Reference Details Using Catalog ID Lookup

Reference details (such as authors, date, publication volume, etc.) may not automatically import into the reference record in Mendeley. For example, fewer details may be captured from Google Scholar as compared to the same article being imported from a library subscription article database. If a catalog ID, such as a DOI (digital object identifier) is available in the imported record, look for a magnifying glass icon to the right of the number in the details pane of Mendeley Desktop. Clicking the icon will generate a "Lookup," and additional details associated with the catalog ID will be automatically added to the reference record. Always check reference details for accuracy and completeness, and edit any missing or incorrect entries.
